

Photographic examples & lighting conditions

When selecting flooring, note that different digital devices and printing conditions may alter colour representations.

Website, brochure and in-store photos serve as references, and should not be the sole basis for flooring choices.

Lighting and other environmental conditions in the installed location should always be considered. Where possible, take physical samples and test at the installation location to review how different lighting and other colour sources can change the appearance of a product.

Customer note:

Prior to purchasing, examine actual product samples, particularly for timber floors. Installed flooring is considered accepted by the customer, with awareness that photo accuracy may vary between flooring batches.
