Expansion & Contraction

Natural movement of your floors is to be expected. Expansion and contraction are common and continuous factors of all floors. Various conditions including and not limited to temperature, moisture, and humidity all impact the performance and life of the floor and quality of flooring installation, regardless of the type and construction of flooring material used.

Gaps are left around the edges of the room including fixtures and cabinetry to accommodate the natural movement of your floors. These gaps are referred to in the industry as Expansion Gaps.

The expansion gaps around the perimeter of the room including fixtures and cabinetry are not visible as they are finished in style with the use of Scotia, Stairnoses, and Trims.

Room Size or Room Transition

Any large size room that exceeds the raft size recommended for the floor type you choose or where the floor will transition to a new space/room, will require the installation of a H trim. A H trim has two separate parts: a base plate and the H top.

Finishing or Ends

Use a C Trim to finish off against tiled areas, timber or metal doors and window tracks. A C Trim can also be used around cabinetry instead of Scotia. It comes in two separate parts: a base plate and a C top.

Design & Application of Trims

For use in residential, office and light commercial applications. Trims are not recommended for areas that will have stock trolleys or experience high/heavy loads rolling over. All Clever Trims are suitable for Classic Laminate, European Oak, Australian Timbers, Hybrid, Hydro and Bamboo Flooring.

To avoid issues after flooring installation such as squeaking, bouncing, cupping or boards exposed from under trims, scotia or skirting it is vital that you plan, prepare and follow recommendations.
